Brigden Ranch: A Classic Neighborhood

By Cindy Arora

The manicured lawns and tree-lined streets of Brigden Ranch showcase the neighborhood's ageless appeal. Found in the northeast area of Pasadena, with homes that date back from the 1920s, there are roughly 600 households that call this historical neighborhood – Home.

Go for an evening walk along of the many beautiful streets in Brigden Ranch, meet your neighbors and pop by Victory Park where you can go for a weekend picnic, the weekly Farmers Market or take in a movie under the stars during the summer months. This is also a spot where one can watch the Rose Parade come January 1st.

Discover the area's diverse community that continues to thrive as more restaurants + retail open in this corridor of Pasadena. Grab lunch in bustling East Washington Village, found just a few miles away from Brigden Ranch, stop in for a cupcake at Lark Bake Shop or pick up a used cookbook from Cookbook by Janet Jarvits one of LA's last-standing cookbook stores.

With access to the Metro Gold Line (with stations at Allen and Lake) getting around Los Angeles is effortless from Brigden. Take a day trip to Chinatown, going to a Dodger Game or checking out the dining scene in Downtown Los Angeles, all you need is a Metro tap card and you are free to discover LA by rail.

Our latest listing at 2274 Queensberry Road is a stylish 1940's classic home that blends together all the beauty of vintage and modern sensibilities. The home is situated in a highly-desirable neighborhood, with a gorgeous view of the San Gabriel Mountains and a warm community who care about preserving the history and charm of Brigden Ranch.
